Teatro Zinzanni

History:

The owner of Teatro Zinzanni was one of the first to call us when we opened a branch in this area. This ghost seems pretty infamous among the circus community. Apparently, while a well-known circus act was traveling through the area, there was a tragic accident which killed the bearded lady. The stories surrounding her death range from suicide to gang-clown-murder, and everything in between. As the story goes, every time the circus passes through town, she shows up and causes all kinds of mischief, vandalizing things that are supposed to be fun and childish to get revenge on the old circus that employed her. Hard to say how much of this is true. As it so happens, the circus just passed through here this week and we have a chance to nab her and a pretty sweet paycheck.

Notes:

Looks like her usual haunt route is pretty small, so get your van in long-term parking and proceed on foot for the remainder of this ghost.
