History:

We were approached by a bellhop (who asked to remain anonymous) while running the seminar, claiming that there is a an infamous haunted room in this very hotel. Loud music playing from rooms that are supposed be empty, mini bars being emptied from behind locked doors, and so on. We asked management about it and they claimed that it was all nonsense and there was no reason to rile up the guests with this kind of "silly witchcraft". Typical. We were later approached by a guest complaining of a haunt in her room and she allowed us access. Though we do not have a paying client, we thought this would be a great training opportunity for you new franchisees. Wouldn't you agree?

Notes:

Since we are using this location as our temporary storage area, there is too much spectral interference to use the Sharc effectively. Looks like it's time to do some good old-fashioned sleuthing. When you have completed a solve, rather than navigating with the Sharc, ask the GP staffer to see if we have uncovered any new information.

Since this is under the table, don't expect any help from hotel staff or management. Try to be quiet and lowkey about this. You may use the conference room to solve if you like, but you may also solve in your van if feel the need to shout expletives at each other.

There is wireless internet access in the hotel. Ask the GP staffer for more details.
